Your Mesmer could be an armorsmith and hand over the armor when it's ready. Experience And Leveling Up You have to level up your crafting skill the same way that you level up your character. They'll be sorted into categories and have a color that indicates how close to your crafting level it is (and thus how much experience it will provide): in descending order, red, orange, yellow, green, blue, white, and grey. Bank Tabs The last few tabs show you the items in your bank and material storage. The selection is not permanent, but it will cost gold to switch too much. This is also the way you'll switch disciplines, should you need to, but that will cost 10 copper for every level you have in the discipline. This was changed in 2016. Discovery Tab The discovery tab is a special mechanic that allows you to discover new recipes. The second way is by getting the item's Recipe Sheet. Production Tab The production tab holds all the recipes you know for the particular crafting discipline. If you've put in the correct items to discover a new recipe but not enough of a particular material, a black and blue preview of the recipe will appear. This way, you'll know what you have to work with. For more details, look below under the "At The Crafting Station" heading. This method however is quicker than Jewel crafting. This is the quickest and most expensive way to gather the materials you need. For each item you create, you'll earn some crafting experience. You might find Green Wood Logs on one map and Ancient Wood Logs on another. This means that you'd order a amount of an item and every time someone sold that item on the Black Trading House, it would be sold to you. You'll see them on your minimap as little woods, ores, or leaves - that indicates that there's a material node at that location. However, we'll outline a few key ways you'll gather materials here. Depending on the item in question, you may be unable to unlock it via the Discovery tab. The items you're using must be in your inventory, bank, or material storage. You can keep a stack of 250 of one item in the Material Storage and there's a slot for every possible crafting item. Thankfully, there's a solution. This isn't a significant way to earn most materials, though, so you'll probably need to resort to one of the other options as well if you want to get anything done. Huntsman are capable of crafting bows (both long and short) torches, pistols, rifles, warhorns and harpoon guns. - and will give you materials that correspond to the items' value and tier. How To Accept A Discipline Once you've decided which discipline to learn, you'll need to find a Master Craftsman (i.e. Master Artificer) of that discipline. It's also possible to recoup some of the initial outlay of money from the weapons you craft, to then sell back to the vendor or to list/salvage on the Trading Post. You don't even have to visit your bank to make the deposit - there's a button in the top left of your inventory that allows you to deposit materials straight from wherever you are. However, the crafting discipline you choose should be centered around the kinds of weapons and gear you're most often using. First, materials can be obtained for free from "nodes" in the open world. Also, just because a Guardian uses heavy armor doesn't mean the Guardian has to be the one making the armor. Almost all crafting disciplines max out at level 500 except for Jeweler and Scribe, which max out at level 400. Recipe Sheets come from a variety of sources, including: Karma Vendors The Black Lion Trading House Heart Quest Vendors Event Chests Laurel Vendors Looting Enemies There are, of course, more ways to obtain these recipe sheets. You'll need gathering tools (either a pickaxe, axe, or scythe) to obtain it; those can be purchased in bulk from almost any vendor. Almost any gear is salvageable - so that's weapons, armor, trinkets, etc. Choosing A Crafting Discipline You can have 2 crafting disciplines active at one time. Sure, you could spend mountains of gold on the Trading House, but why bother when you can do it yourself? It allows you to combine ingredients until you find something that creates a working item and, once you've made it once, it gives you the recipe. Fourth and finally, items can be purchased from other players via the Black Lion Trading House. For example, exotic armor may give Ectoplasm when salvaged. Choosing the disciplines for each class is simply a time saver. Before You Craft: Getting Recipes You'll automatically be given some crafting recipes when you learn a discipline and as you level up in it. At The Crafting Station In order to make an item, you need to go to a crafting station. This will take a period of time to gather them all, but will save you money. Unlike becoming a Chef or Artificer, leveling this and the remaining crafting professions can still take some time (about an hour if you have all the ingredients). Try not to resort to this unless it's a material you can't get yourself for some reason (for example, some items need sigils that a different discipline needs to make for you). Different maps in the world are programmed to have different kinds of nodes. Note: It used to matter more because recipes would only be added for the character that consumed the recipe sheet. Your bank has a separate tab called your "Material Storage" that is exclusively made to keep materials in. If you're looking for something specific, don't just wander around hoping it'll drop - look it up online. To read the latest guides, news, and features you can visit our Guild Wars 2 Game Page. Start by reviewing this list of all the disciplines and the items that they make: Discipline Gear They Can Make Upgrades They Can Make Other Items They Can Make Recommended Classes Armorsmith Metal Boxes (Inventory Bag) Guardians Warriors Revenants Artificer Foci Staves Scepters Tridents Potions Tonics Tuning Crystals Elementalist Mesmer Necromancer Guardian Ranger Revenant Chef Huntsman Shortbows Longbows Pistols Rifles Harpoon Guns Torches Warhorns Jeweler Leatherworker Leather Packs (Inventory Bags) Scribe Tailor Cloth Bags (Inventory Bags) Elementalist Mesmer Necromancer Weaponsmith Axes Daggers Swords Greatswords Maces Hammers Spears Shields The recommended classes are based on whether are not they can use the gear that the discipline makes. You'll have to go to a bank to get them back out again, though. Guild Wars 2 is a difficult game to play without good gear, especially in the end-game content. Talk to them and they'll teach you the craft for free. Just like recipes, materials come from a variety of sources. The first way to find a recipe you're looking for is by using the "Discovery" tab on the crafting station. Keep in mind that: Items with grey names will not earn any crafting experience for you The higher level you are, the more experience you'll need to level up For disciplines that max out at level 500, you'll be able to craft exotic gear at level 400 and ascended gear at level 500 Ways To Modify Crafting Experience Effect Name Effect Source Bonus Crafting Experience Bonus Critical Crafting Chance Keep In Mind... It'll show you which items can be salvaged and which ones cannot. There's one in every major city, as well as all the starting areas. However, these aren't usually very exciting items. Last Updated: Mar 15, 2016 report this ad Material Storage Over time, you'll acquire a truly groundbreaking amount of materials - far more than could ever fit in your bank and/or your inventory. Third, you'll slowly collect materials over time from looting your enemies. It's just four empty slots: you place crafting materials into each slot and combine them to create the recipe. It's also recommend you check your crafting bank in the event you already own some materials. Not every combination of items works, though, and it won't let you combine items that don't go together. Before You Craft: Getting Materials The materials are the things physically going into your item - woods, ores, raw foods, etc. Also, since only two can be active at once and you need to get to level up your crafting ability, it's a good idea to just stick to two for each character. You'll come across lots of Recipe Sheets just by naturally playing the game but, given how many recipes there are, the chances that you'll find the exact recipe you were looking for just by random chance isn't very good. The point of this is to give you a choice: you can break that equipment down into its materials or liquify all that equipment into gold by selling it on the Trading House. When you add the correct amount of items, you will be able to click the "craft" button. They can also make consumable maintenance oils that provide buffs similar to cooking or artificing. Second, you can get a lot of materials by "salvaging" other items. One thing to keep in mind is that you may need more than one of each item to discover a recipe. This guide helps introduce you to the MMORPG's crafting system so that you can make your own weapons, armor, and more. Please note: It is always recommend that you place Buy Orders for crafting ingredients or components. That's getting a little more advanced, though, so don't worry about it yet. For the most part, you'll need to obtain recipes from other sources. Like crafting masters, they're found in every major city and every racial starting map. Many of the large events in Guild Wars reward you not with large sums of money but with a lot of random, useless equipment. You do that by purchasing a salvaging kit from almost any NPC merchant and double-clicking on it in your inventory. +50 Percent Crafting Critical Chance Boost Crafting Booster Enchanted Reward Boost Item Booster Heroic Booster Item Booster Enchanted Reward Boost Guild Crafting Boost The percentage of bonus critical crafting chance is determined based on your guild's enhancement level Requires you to own at least one expansion Productive Downtime Pact Commander Mastery Track Requires you to own at least one expansion NEXT: Guild Wars 2: A Beginner's Guide To The Races Ashoka Trailer Teases Star Wars Rebels Characters Sabine Wren, Ezra Bridger, Hera Syndulla Gabrielle Huston (483 Articles Published) More From Gabrielle Huston report this ad report this ad Becoming a Huntsman is more expensive than the guides I've produced previously but it is notably quicker because of it. Similarly to Jewel crafting, there are a large amount of ingredients involved so it's always worth paying careful attention to what you have and haven't bought. However, if you're willing to spend a little money, you could also place an order for materials.

Crafting is one of the staples of the MMORPG genre. Different games use this feature, either as a money-making method or as a way to get the most powerful items. There's a lot of variance in the crafting systems and the impact that they have on the respective games.
